

I use XM radio for news and entertainment all the time. The programming and listening quality is the best available today. Long before I got XM I had stopped listening to AM/FM radio due to poor signal while traveling and limited signal at the home and office. I probably would have stopped it because I can't stand the constant drivel offered. FM has become a stream of advertising occasionally broken by music, amateur comics and news. I consider it useless. Traffic and weather information on XM radio is a safety issue, not entertainment. It will save more lives; it will reduce the number of accidents; Road rage will be reduced by helping some folks avoid congestion and hazardous conditions. Living in an area known to receive hurricanes, I know I'll be able to depend upon XM for helpful information in my vehicle should we lose local electrical power due to one of these storms.
